

What is a Memorandum Regarding Personal Property

This is a simple form to help you make a list of people who will receive your personal and household belongings after you pass away. You should not use this form to give away valuable things like cars, real estate, cash, securities, or other high-value items. While there's no rush to fill out the form, try to finish it as soon as you can. Be specific when describing each item in the list. You can update the list anytime you want after completing it.

